

Platform for Digital Transformation

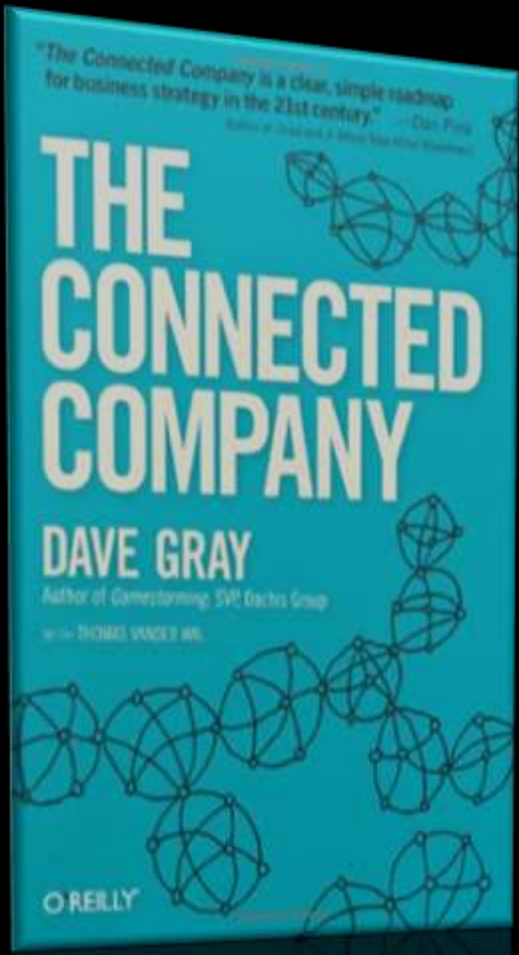

Strategy for Modern Enterprise Architecture

Asanka Abeysinghe

Vice President, Solutions Architecture

<http://asanka.abeyasinghe.org>

@asankama

Platforms are systems that support a community. A platform is an investment, often a long-term investment that will only pay for itself over a long period of time. A platform supports a network — a shared resource — and in order to thrive, it must attract and retain members.

- Gray, Dave; The Connected Company.

Why we need a platform

- Demand from the business stakeholders
- Rapidly changing business requirements
- Quick release cycles
 - Continues integration and testing
- Rapid technology changes
- Provide Middleware-as-a-Service (platform)

Do I need the entire platform
?

- Iterative architecture
- Iterative implementation

<http://www.flickr.com/photos/midnight-digital/5036238903/in/photostream/>

dangercouch.com/irrelevant.org

No one jumps a 20 foot
chasm
in two 10 foot
jumps.

Miguel Guhlin

Picture credit : <http://flickr.com>

Give a code name for the platform. e.g. Digital Platform

Don't use product/vendor names.

Introduce an onboarding program.

Including samples, documents, patterns and training.

Evangelize the platform
(internally).

Build foundation services and expose as APIs.

Increase the developer productivity and reusability.

Seamlessly integrated.

Have a common enterprise architecture practices across the organization.

Include architects from different BUs and architecture groups.

Business services platform

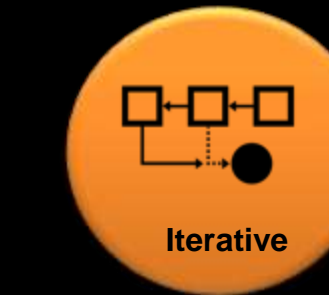

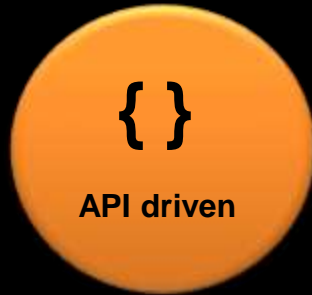

Phase layered strategy

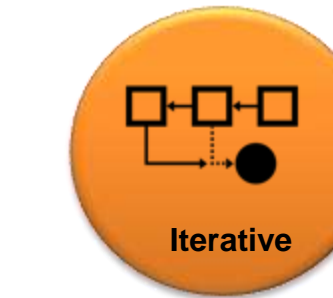

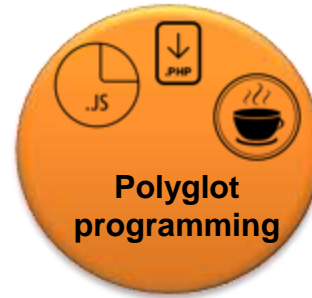

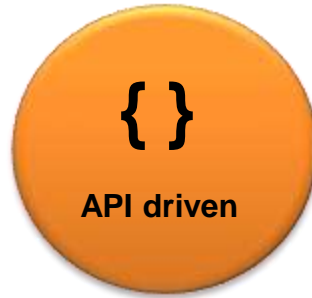

Platform for digital transformation

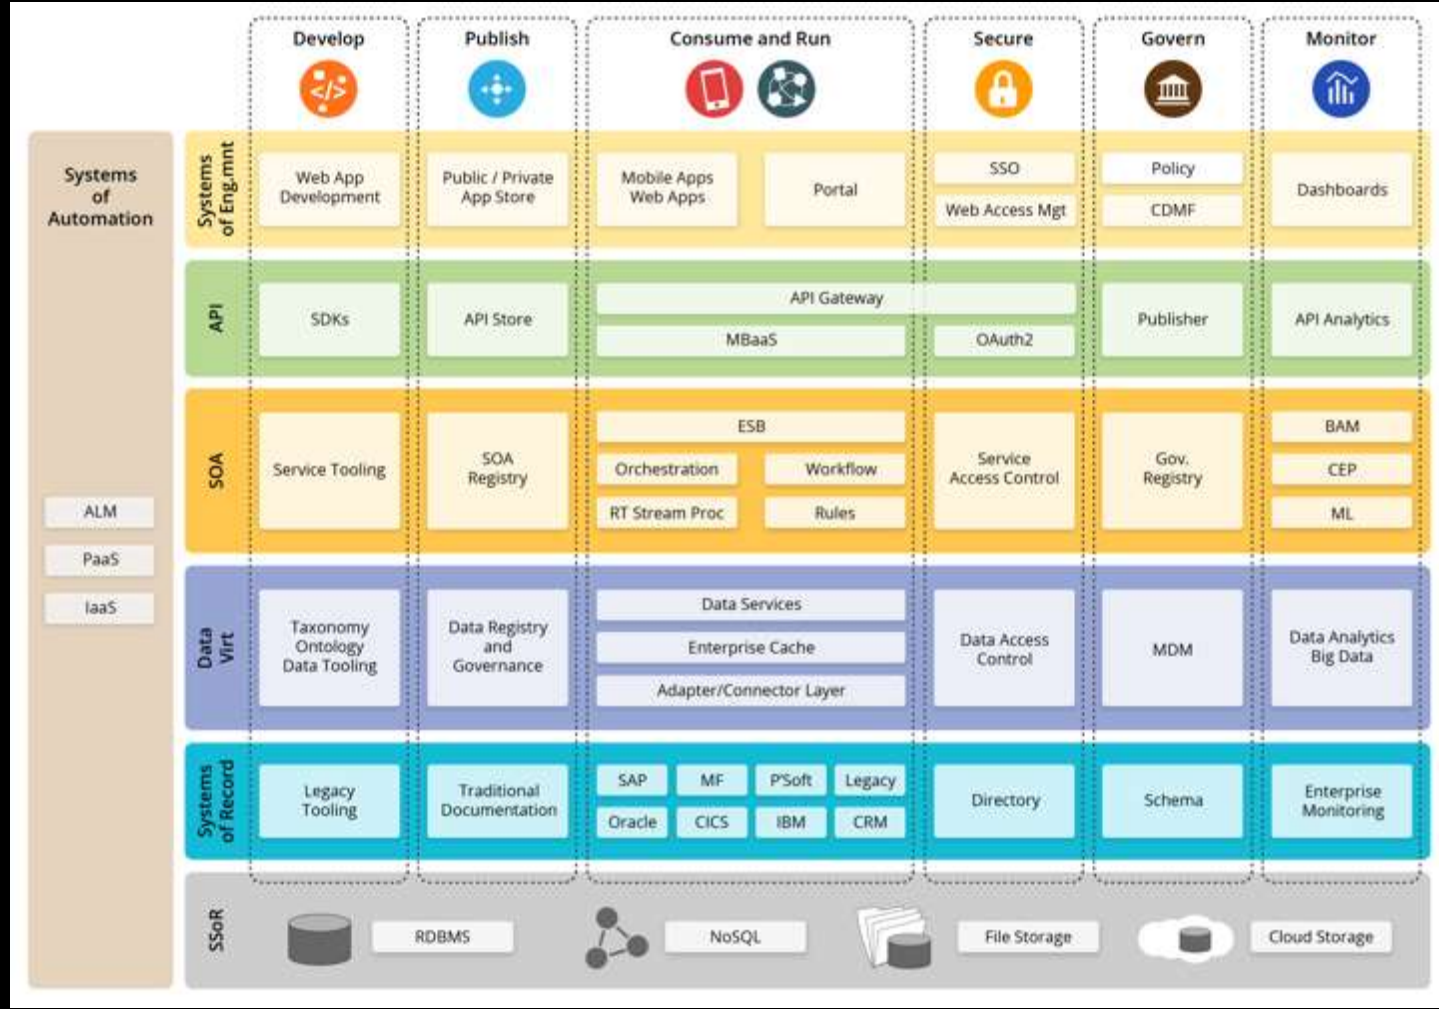

Platform 3.0

System of Systems

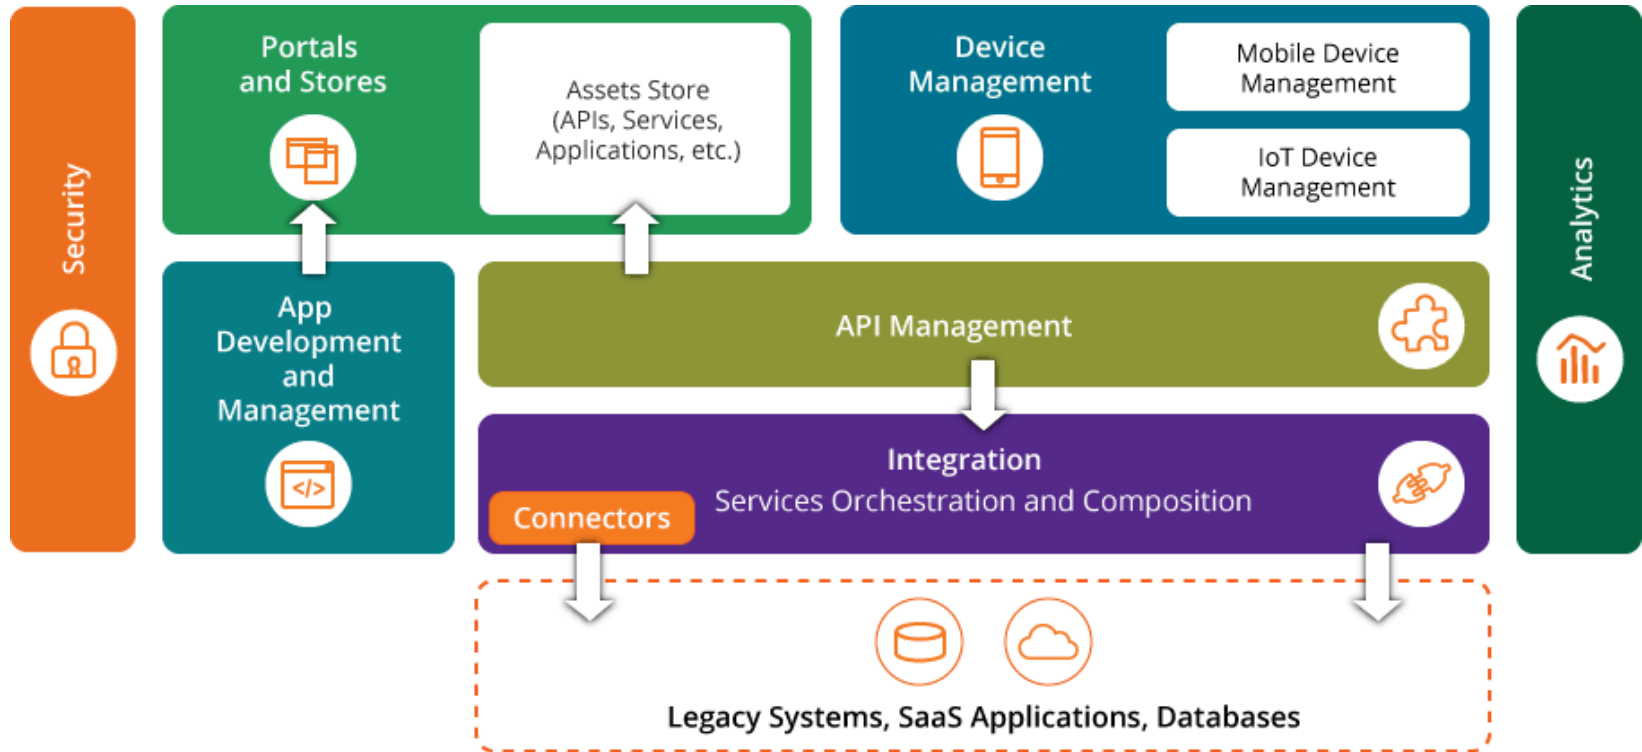

Middleware functional capabilities

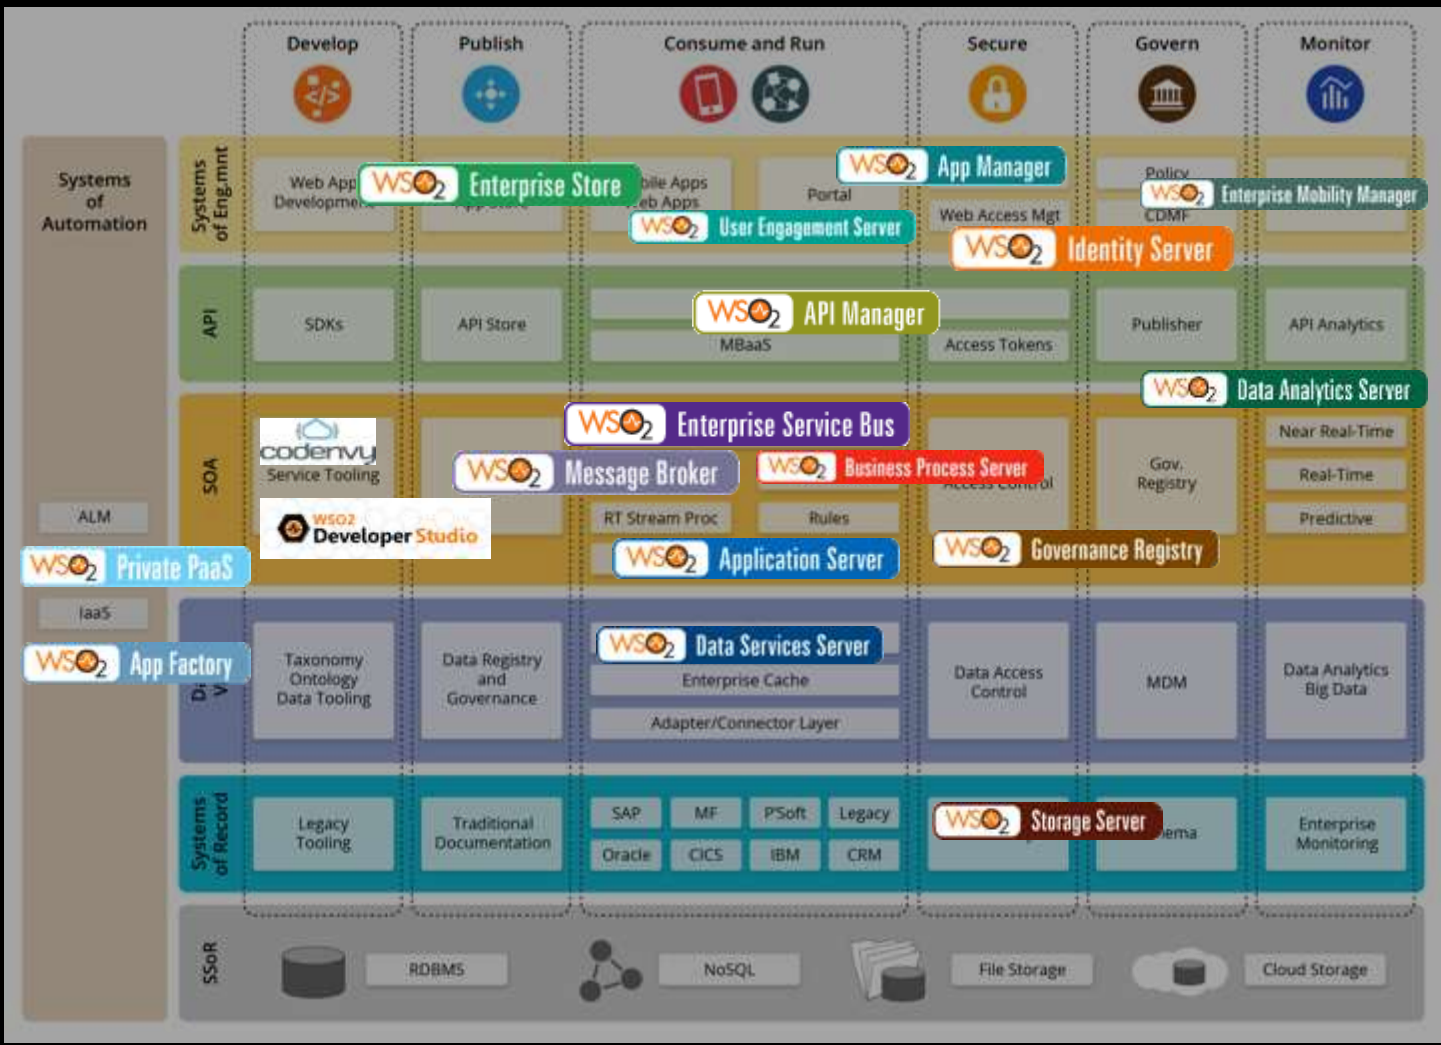

Platform of platforms

Enterprise middleware platform

Middleware functional capabilities

Product mapping

North America

Europe

Middle East and Asia-Pacific

South America

Contact us !

GRACIAS
 ARIGATO
 SHUKURIA
 TASHAKKUR ATU
 SUKSAMA
 SKHMET
 THANK YOU
 BOLZIN
 MERCI